Conservation Nationwide 4-H Project

What is conservation? If 10 people were asked, in all probability there would be 10 different answers.

But if they were asked who is responsible for conservation of the nation's natural resources, they would undoubtedly answer, "Everyone!" And they would be right.

4-Hers Participate

Conservation is one's business, even youngsters. Proof of this is in the national 4-H Conservation of Natural Resources project, which includes parents, children, educators and conservation specialists. The 4-H members carry out projects in soil and water conservation, wildlife protection, reforestation, and anti-pollution.

The farm boy works to prevent soil erosion, water contamination, fire prevention and damage to crops and livestock. This boy wants irrigation and management, water and insect control to insure profitable farming operations.

Urban 4-Hers are concerned with protecting towns and cities from air and water pollution, bright lights, decibel levels, noise to enter fishing and swimming in recreational areas where they can catch a prize fish instead of an old boot or dive into a lake filled with one contaminated with rubbish or harmful bacteria.

Prizes Please

Another participant in John Deere, the 4-H Conservation program sponsor, for the fifth straight year, John Deere has given five awards to county winners and national awards given annually to 4-Hers who have completed the best conservation demonstration for television viewers in the West Central part of Colorado. Both boys were involved in county-wide conservation activities.

Awards Offered

The 4-H Conservation club members now exceed a quarter million.

They are guided and assisted in their individual projects and other projects, such as extension agents and other qualified persons. Parents often team up with their offspring in tackling the long-range goals of water preservation. An

WEED CONTROL

I talked with Paul Wile, of Route One, Kinston, a few days ago about weed and grass control.

Announcing the appointment of GARY L. HUDSON Special Agent

He is prepared to help you evaluate your financial possibilities and those that you can anticipate during the next few years, your home, your children, your years, their education, your health, your job, your hobbies, whatever the need, there is a way to meet it.

A newspaper has within its editorial complex the responsibility to cover the news of the day, to inform the public of our elected officials, and to expose the acts of those who abuse their power.

This capacity to do good or evil is so great that the newspaper bears an unusual responsibility to the public.

We pledge that in all business transactions, honesty and integrity will be primary factors.

We also subscribe to the fact that the right to know embraces a constitutional right to freedom of information.

We believe that the right to know is the right of every citizen to be better informed. Through our Alabama Press Association, we seek constantly to promote the public interest.

NEWS AND EDITORIAL CONTENT

The right of each individual who is subject of a news story or editorial comment to have his name and his actions reported without censorship, is the right of the press to publish news stories which are true and accurate.

We pledge that in all editorial coverage and policies, should strive always to reflect the truth.

Truth and impartiality must be applied to all elements of news coverage, including news stories, headlines, photographs, cutlines, and editorial comment, syndicated columns, cartoons, illustrations, and editorial features.

The public has a right to the private citizen, deserved respect and recognition.

We believe that the right to fair trial before an impartial jury of his peers is an inherent part of American democracy as is freedom of the press. News editors and publishers have a responsibility to see that they do not jeopardize the rights of others.

Older People To Get New Medicare Handbooks

Within the coming weeks, older people in this area will be receiving a new copy of "Your Medicare Handbook," a new up-to-date guide to one of the Medicare benefits offered by the program, and how payments work, and how security amendments, improving protection and simplifying Medicare procedures. It has also been made easier for older people to read and understand.

In developing the new edition of "Your Medicare Handbook," Scott, Social Security Commissioner, said the new handbook highlights the changes enacted in the 1967 social of communications and representatives of professional organizations.

Delivery of the new edition, which will be mailed to 19 million Americans 65 and over will be cycled over the next 6 weeks, he said.

In an introductory letter on the inside front cover of the new Handbook, Robert M. Ball, Commissioner of Social Security, reminds older people that you need further information or want help concerning your medicare protection or other security matters, you should touch with your local security office. The people there are always glad to help you."

Chicken Recipe Can

Win Vacation For Two

A fabulous seven-day vacation for two in the Grand Bahamas Islands awaits the writer and cook of Alabama's best chicken recipe.

The Alabama Poultry Industry Association is conducting an intensive search for recipes which are new, original, or developed by established, well-known recipe. But, time is running out for cooks to enter their choice masterpiece to be judged for entry in May 12.

Alabama has been divided into five districts from which written recipes will be judged. The winners will receive a food consultant, and nutritionist, a single recipe will be selected from each of the five districts, and the writer will prepare the dish in

Plant Extra Okra

Prices Up In 1968

Farmers who want to earn extra cash this year might plant a few acres of okra, which is averaging $5 a ton above 1967 prices. Due to rising costs from Alabama farms supplemented their cash incomes in 1967 through okra sales at vegetable processing companies. Extension Specialist in Fruit and Vegetable Marketing M. R. Glasscock says they produced over four times the amount of okra and increased total farm income by $153,000. These families received weekly pay checks from July to August. Producers earned good incomes of more than $400 an acre.

Production and sales contracts are available for growers in Montgomery, Lowndes, Dallas, Perry, Marengo, Pickens and Autauga counties. Farmers should contact county Extension chairman or production field representatives in these counties.

He went on to say that many people take the course primarily because it gives them a broader understanding of human relations. They want to know how to get along even more graciously with people in their home, business or social situation or at home, Taylor reported that the Dale Carnegie Course, during its fifth year, has graduated well over a million men and women and the course is now offered all fifty states and in many foreign countries.

Anyone who is interested in more information about the Dale Carnegie Course may telephone Dr. Miles or any member of the Elba Lions Club.

Graduation ceremonies for 1967-68 at Alabama College will be held Sunday, June 10, after a record number of students scheduled to receive bachelor and graduate degrees.

Dr. Frederick P. Whigham, President of the University of South Alabama will present the commencement address at 3 p.m. Sunday afternoon. The graduation will be held in Palmer Auditorium on the Montevallo campus.

Miss Gail Donaldson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Donaldson of Route 3, Elba, will be among the students receiving degrees.
